Mr. Fred Schade

has assumed the position of Business Manager of the WASHINGTON SENTINEL. We bespeak for him a cordial reception from the business men of this city, brewers and others upon whom he may call for advertisements and subscriptions.

Vote for Rixey,

Hon. John F. Rixey, member of Congress from Virginia, who represented the 8th District so ably and efficiently during the last two years, has again been renominated

He has been a good Congress man and taken excellent care o his constituents, and we sincerely hope that he will be re-elected with an increased majority.

Col, Wm J. Bryan

arrived in the city last Thursday We had the pleasure of meeting him at the Metropolitan Hotel He looks a great deal older. His complexion is very dark and the lines of his face deeply marked. He answered our question as to whether he had seen the Associated Press despatch, charging that some officers of the War Department had visited the camp of his regiment and found the same filthy, by saying that he had. To our further question: "Is there any truth in it?" he stated emphatically that there was not, and that his camp was kept in the best possible order. He pointed as a proof to the excellent condition and record of h alth of his regi-

Liquor Traffic Investigation.

The Twelith Annual Report of Hon. Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor, embodying the result of his investigations into the economic aspects of the liquor question, has just been published. The book contains chapters on the production, consumption, and traffic in liquors, the revenue from the production of and traffic in liquors, and the experience and practice of employers relative to the use of intoxicants. It also contains a synopsis of the laws of the United States, and of each State, regulating the revenue Jerived from the tables bearing upon every phase of the economic aspects of this question.

The investigation in this form intended to be carried out on different lines and for different objects and defeated so many times before Congress. Whether or not this is our old friend masquerading in a new dress an examination, which we reserve for a future issue, only can tell. Candidly we are inclined | their own expense. to think that it is not.

A Horse Doctor at the Head of Whole Army Corps.

That Commission of Nine, which Mr. McKinley will appoint to whitewash Algerism, will come too late into operation.

The indignant exposures of Generals Sanger, Wylie and other officers at Lexington, showing up the utter want of proper management of our camps by the War Department, will spoil any attempt to whitewash. The pointing out that Huidekoper, the chief surgeon at the Chickamauga camp, was a horse doctor, who had successfully cured the lap-dog of Mrs. McKinley, and thereby drawn the attention of Mr. McKinley upon himself, and secured his appointment, is somehing which no tons of whitewash can wash away.

Alger now accuses the commanding officers of the camps of keeping him in ignorance. Why did he not send out his men in the Department to investigate the afduty to do?

It is the Republican Administration, and the Republican party for electing an improper and weak man to be the head of the Government, that is responsible. We must elect a Democratic House, if we want to cure the evil and put a stop to that national calthe health of thousands of our sol diers. Even now not one of the malefactors who killed our men has been removed from office. They all hold the places which they have disgraced. Not one of them has been punished or even put to trial.

McKinley and Alger want to put the blame on others who were under their control. That won't do. They alone are responsible.

Read the article on our first page. It is the voice of a murdered man, killed by inches, as he himless Republican Administration.

Put an End to Hazing. It gives us much satisfaction to learn that West Point Cadet Smith is to be punished for hazing.

We had hoped that this cowardly and detestable practice of hazing would have by this time disappeared from our military establishments. It is a practice so ignoble and so unmanly that its eradication is indispensable to their honorable names. It means simply the oppression and humiliation of the weak by the strong, the torture of the helpless, the triumph of the coward and the cad. It constitutes in morals, as it should in fact, a brand of infamy upon every one who engages in it. It is difficult, if not impossible, to imagine that any one capable of such an odious offense can be a gentleman, and it seems to us to follow, as a logical consequence, that he is unfit to be an officer in the United States army.

It must be remembered that these youths are training for officers and gentlemen. Some of them are born to fitness, others hope to have it conferred upon them by precept and experience. But the tact remains that he who would inflict a cowardly and mean humilnation upon a helples victim is lacking in every essential qualification for his chosen career, and we are not sure that he who submits tamely to such an outrage is much better off. Several years ago, it will be remembered, Cadet Buck of Texas set an example by shooting one of his tormentors. Why this example has not been followed we do not know.

Hazing is nothing less than infamy. It breeds cowards and bullies, tyranny and meanness. It should be suppressed even if every fourth class man had to sleep with a revolver under his pillow, and if a dozen craven hoodlums were shot to death each year. Our army were better, cleaner, of higher tone and more chivalrous spirit, as the result of such purgation,

The Canteen.

Col. William C. Church, editor of the Army and Navy Fournal, in an interview says:

I do not believe that the men in our army should be restricted in the use of iquors in moderation. By their use, I elieve, disease would be warded off. believe in the canteen, and was sorry to notice the other day that some good people were trying to have the canteen liquor production and traffic, and at Montauk abolished. This would be a mistake. Only non-intoxicants, beer and light wines, can be optained there, and these only in limited quantities.

The mean, nonsensical criticisms was begun by the Department of which the Voice, a prohibition Labor some years ago, and was paper, passed against this gentleman, is in good keeping with the rest of the flimsy trash that these than the prohibitive measure poor notoriety seeking editors known as the Alcoholic Liquor publish in their illustrious jour-Commission, which the Editor of nal. It is true that General Kitchthe WASHINGTON SENTINEL met ener and the British Government did not believe in the canteen, That is, in the way it is conducted here, where it is an army canteen and the soldiers put in together, buy and dispense the liquors at

> In the Egyptian and all other campaigns conducted by the British, the soldiers are treated like men and feel like men, not like dogs. Their canteens are filled with the best liquor, furnished by the commissary, and at their meals they regularly receive their mugs of ale and beer. This is a fact which our poor prohibitionists can not deny. In comparing Shafter's half-dead army of invalids, gasping at Montauk Point, with the triumphant Anglo-Egyptian army which, after a campaign of unexampled hardships, has just captured Khartum, with hardly a trace of sickness in all its long desert march, it is plain to us that it would have indeed been far better tor ous boys if that incompetent, General Shafter, instead of refusing, had allowed that cargo of beer to be landed.

Unsuccessful in their efforts to induce Governor Tanner to substifairs of those camps, as was his tute water for wine in the christening of the battleship Illinois, and failing of the positive assistance sought from President McKinley and Secretary of the Navy Long, the officers of the W. C. I. U. have focused their endeavors on the shipbuilders. Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, the National President, has sent a letter to the contractor, amity, which has killed and ruined | urging the use of water instead of wine in the ceremony. "In Secretary Long's answer to our let. ter," says Mrs. Stevens, "we are told the shipbuilders are the ones having authority in this matter; therefore we have written to them. This, I believe, will be our final being stocked with the popular brands appeal." We cannot help sympathizing with our good Christian sisters at the lack of success they have so far encountered in their earnest efforts to save the battleship Illi nois from the contaminating touch of the champagne bottle. But, self states, by our cruel and heart- then, ladies, you should remember has established a reputation second to the end is admirable, quick, sharp and the Kentucky. bath. Don't you think, then, it would be far better to allow one bottle to be broken and be done with? Or would you rather see another deluge of this kind?

Too Late. Wednesday there was news that Alger and such of his fellow incompetents as were with him were openly denounced for heartless incompetence by the officers of Camp Thomas. Now comes the news that the Chairman and the Vice Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, Mr. Babcock and Chairman Hull of the House Committee on Military Atfairs, have begged Mr. McKinley to save the party from defeat by accepting Alger's resignation. Evidently something swifter and more drastic than a lamb investigation by a crippled committee is going to be done or attempted. There may have been a time when simply getting rid of Alger would have made a strong favorable impression upon the public mind. But that time has long passed. The public wrath has long since swept into the path of public vengeance a great deal more than Alger. It has been made too clear to the public mind that Alger is only a part of a scandalous maladministration of the army that radiated from Mr. McKinley himself. What could Mr. McKinley possibly do at this late day to remove from his Administration the odium of committing, of covering up, of defending, of persisting in the great unpunished and unrebuked and unabated crime?

Ohio Brewers Object,

A Just Provision,

In order to protect the game in the State the following act was passed by the last Legislature of Virginia. This ought to hit the numerous pot-hunters that visit the Old Dominion every season pretty hard:

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia, That it shall be unlawful to kill, capture, buy or sell partridges or quail, pheasants ruffled grouse, Mongolian pheasants, or wild turkeys in the counties of Fauquier, Loudon and Prince William between the first day of January and the first day of November of each year, and the possession of the game enumerated in this section shall be deemed a violation of

There is some criticism of the Administration for making a horse doctor chief surgeon of an army corps, and putting him in charge of the health of fifty thousand men in the most important camp in the

AT THE THEATRES.

The New National.

"The Christian," one of the greates attractions of the season, will be the real magnet to amusement seekers of Washington at the National next week. Monday evening Miss Viola Allen, for the past five years leading lady of the New York Empire Theatre Stock Company, will make her formal debut as a star in the character of Glory Quayle in Hall Caine's play, founded on his famous novel of the same title. This production has attracted unusual attention since it was announced, three months ago, as the vehicle to be used by Miss Allen for her first starring tour. No novel published in this county for ten years created such a sensation as "The Christian" caused among all classes of people, and its production on the stage, with Viola Allen as Glory Quayle, became at once an event of especial interest to every reader of the book, who looked forward to it with most eager expectancy. It was therefore a most pleasing announcement to the Washington admirers of Hall Caine and "The Christian," that the first formal production of the piece would be made here Monday evening at the National, and also that the great

The part of Glory Quayle could not be put in more competent hands for faithful portrayal than those of Miss Allen, whose superb natural talents, matured by long experience with the leading stars of the country and as leadng lady of the best equipped dramatic organization in New York, has made her the most conspicuous artist on the American stage. Her supporting company will be an excellent one. Too strong in herself to need mediocre talent as a contrastive background to her splendid art, she has selected for her support actors and actresses of the highest ability each exactly suited in talent and personality for the part that he or she portrays. Probably no more carefully considered cast for a great play has been selected in America for many years. With the aim of translating the characters from the book to the stage so faithfully as to fulfill every conception of the reader of the novel, the personality of each artist received fully as much consideration as his or her ability as a player. Thus some of the greatest difficulties, and one of the absolute centainties of success, in dramatizing a popular novel, was at once overcome and author himself would be in attendance to witness it.

The cast of principals is as follows, but in addition to these characters, there are 20 minor speaking parts which will be played by experienced actors and actresses:-

The Hon. John Storm E. J. Morgan. Father Lamplauga E I Dillon. Archdeacon Wealthy G. Woodward Lord Storm Nervyn Dallas Horatio Drake John Mason Lord Robero Uur J. Lee Finney The "Faro King" Myron Calice Edgar Norton Brother Paul F. J. "The Christian" will be presented n a prologue and four acts, in which four sets of scenery, superb in artistic magnificence, will be utilized, The scene of the prologue is laid on the tilting ground in the ruins of Poel castle. Isle of Man. Here Glory Quayle rejects ohn Storm, who declares his intention of taking orders in the church, and Glory determines to go to London, where she enters on a stage career, The scene of the second act is the saloon of the Colosseum Music Hall in London, where Glory's great success as a debutante is being celebrated. The third scene shows the club room of St. Mary Magdalen's Church, in Soho, which has been established by John Storm in his efforts to reform the fallen women of the East end of London, and the tourth Glory's apartments in the "Garden House," Clement's Inn. London. The fourth act set reverts to the church scene in the second act The mob scene in the last act will be very realistic and thrilling, every person appearing in the mob being an artist of experience. The costumes will be elaborate. In the first act Miss Allen will wear the costume so carefully described by the author in the novel-stocking cap, hand knit jersey, sea coat, short skirt, and sea boots. In the subsequent acts her costumes will be magnificent, The music will be made a special feature, accompanying the action of the entire

At the Academy.

"AN ENEMY TO THE KING."

The reigning melodramatic success of ne present decade, "An Enemy to the King" will be the attraction at the Academy. Should you want to see John Griffith-who has become quite famous the past few seasons as Mephisto in Goethe s "Faust"-in one of the rugged forms of melodrama, look in at the Academy and see how he annihilates De Montignac in the final act of "An Enemy to the King." Here is a "mediaeval scrap" worth seeing. From the moment he comes on the stage, you grow steadily conscious of the supreme worth of action, and of the inconsequential character of all other things which enter into the drama. It was d'Artignan who said that no man should draw a sword unless he intended to use it. There is no braggart air here. Griffith as Tournoire is on hand to kill, and the way he goes at it makes your heart leap into your throat and your hair to stand on end. The last act of the play Starve thousands of people in this rich country, with hundreds of millions in the Treasury!
